

LO: To write to entertain

Continue the story below. You can type it up if you have access to a computer or just finish the story in your homework book. Really use your amazing imagination and descriptive devices to wow the reader. You might focus on the setting as well as what might be happening. You should be spending at least 10 minutes planning, 30 minutes writing and 10 minutes editing and improving.

Here is a success criteria to help you think about the things you might include in your writing.

I can use powerful word verbs, adverbs and adjectives to add detail for the reader.		I can use senses to add to extra detail for the reader.
I can select and maintain the tense and person I use throughout my writing.		I can use similes and metaphors to add extra detail.
I can use a range of TRaMP adverbials to vary my sentence openers. (Don't forget commas for these fronted adverbials)		I can punctuate my sentences accurately.

Solitary Existence

Six months earlier, Ben had lived in the city. Life had been busy; a constant buzz of people and traffic. In some ways, living in the city had been comforting, as if he was part of an urban family, a melting pot of people of all ages and all walks of life. However, Ben had tired of that life; it was now time for a change of direction.

Standing on his porch, Ben drew breath. As the clean, cool air filled his lungs, a smile spread across his face...
